Taxes

As an international student, researcher, or faculty member at Harvard, it is important that you are aware of your U.S. income tax obligations. U.S. tax laws distinguish between residents and non-residents for U.S. tax purposes. Non-residents only pay taxes on U.S. source income, while residents follow the same tax rules as U.S. citizens and pay taxes on their worldwide income.

ADDITIONAL SERVICES

Stipend

Fellows receive a stipend payment on the final Friday of each month for the duration of their residency. Payments can be received either by paper check or direct deposit. The fellowship stipend is considered taxable income; taxes are automatically withheld by Harvard University for postdoctoral fellows and foreign nationals. Fellows who are U.S. citizens will not automatically have taxes withheld. It is the fellow's responsibility to set aside funds to pay taxes on the fellowship income earned during each calendar year. Whether or not you are taxed on your stipend will be dependent on your country of citizenship.

Please see more about tax treaties here:

<https://www.huecu.org/>

Once you have done so, you can set up direct deposit, via logging into PeopleSoft via harvie.harvard.edu

Debit Cards - Most banks issue a debit card with the opening of a bank account. A debit card looks like, and for the most part, functions like a credit card. The main difference is that money is directly taken from your bank account when using a debit card. Most businesses accept debit cards. You may be limited to a certain amount of daily withdrawals.

Credit Cards - In most cases fellows may be required to have a Social Security Number (SSN) in order to apply for a credit card. International fellows who are not eligible for an SSN will be able to obtain a credit card with limited credit when opening an account at the Harvard Credit Union. You will need to present a Harvard ID card, a $25.00 minimum opening deposit, and a valid passport. You will be asked to complete IRS Form W -8BEN

Furniture

Furniture can easily get expensive if not budgeted accordingly. It is important to keep in mind shipping, delivery, and installation fees. Given that these fellowships are only one year, you may want to consider buying used items. Many items found on Facebook groups or Craigslist are often in gently used condition. You may also want to take advantage of free shipping for large items and compare costs across websites.

The MBTA operates busses, commuter rails, and subways and provides easy access the Boston and greater Boston region. It is recommended that you acquire a Charlie Card at a station window. One way ticket price costs around 2 dollars.

Uber / Lyft

Uber and Lyft are car riding services that can be called for with an app on your phone. They are a more affordable and convenient option than Taxi service. You can receive 20 dollars off on your first ride with Uber using the promo code 9gszv.

Health Insurance

Harvard does not require scholars to sign up for health insurance plans, however, Massachusetts law requires all Massachusetts residents to have health insurance. In addition, scholars and their dependents on J Exchange Visitor visas are required by the U.S. Department of State to have health insurance according to the J Scholar Visa regulations. - See more at: <http://www.hio.harvard.edu/health-care-scholars#sthash.oaR3zFne.dpuf>. SAI will provide health insurance reimbursement/payment up to $5,000 per term during the duration of your appointment.

If you'd like to enroll in the Harvard University Student Health Plan for Post-Doctoral Affiliates, you may fill out this form and return it to Diana Nguyen. The health insurance will be retroactive to the date of your appointment start date (July 1). If you have your own health insurance that you will keep, you must submit receipts to SAI to be reimbursed.

Phone

Most cellular plans require a Social Security Number,

T-Mobile Monthly 4G

This service offers the same rate as a regular contract, but clients pay the bill at the beginning of the month rather than at the end. No Social Security Number or contract is needed.

AT&T Pay As You Go Phone

This service offers four plans from which to choose, none requiring a Social Security Number or a contract. The individual is automatically billed for a certain number of daytime minutes, and some plans include free night and weekend minutes. Alternatively, post-paid plans with a service agreement and credit may offer more favorable rates. Upon presentation of a Harvard ID, AT&T will waive the $500 security deposit and offers a 10% discount off the price of the rate plan.

Long Distance Services that Supplement Cellular Service

Cellular LD is a company offering Prepaid International Long Distance plans from your cellular phone. It works with more than 220 countries, but does require clients to have cellular phones. Cellular LD does NOT act as or replace a U.S. wireless plan—monthly allotment rules still apply. However, dialing the access number makes international calls cheaper, and the service works domestically and abroad. The prepaid minutes do not expire and there are no hidden fees. No Social Security Number or contract is needed, and clients may manage their accounts online. Applications are available for iPhone, BlackBerry, Android, and Windows Mobile. You may sign up here and begin using the service immediately. It is operated by MobileSphere.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

Are any additional funds available for research-related travel, participation in academic conferences, etc.?

No. Unfortunately, LMSAI cannot offer any additional funds for travel or conferences. With reasonable exceptions for brief trips, our Fellows are expected to remain in residence during the term of their appointment.

Are there opportunities for fellows to take classes at Harvard? Is tuition for such classes included in the fellowship?

Fellows are not formally enrolled as students and thus cannot register for classes through the Registrar's Office. However, fellows may (and frequently do) audit classes with permission from the instructor.

What are some expected outcomes of the fellowship?

Each fellow is expected to write a 4 to 5 page paper covering what they accomplished during the fellowship, to be published on LMSAI's website. Each fellow is expected to give a seminar, with a faculty member serving as a chair, as well as serve as a discussant at a LMSAI seminar related to their field.

How are fellows paid, and how is this income taxed?

Fellows receive a stipend payment on the final Friday of each month for the duration of their residency. Payments can be received either by paper check or direct deposit. The fellowship stipend is considered taxable income; taxes are automatically withheld by Harvard University for postdoctoral fellows and foreign nationals. Fellows who are U.S. citizens will not automatically have taxes withheld. It is the fellow's responsibility to set aside funds to pay taxes on the fellowship income earned during each calendar year. Whether or not you are taxed on your stipend will be dependent on your country of citizenship. Please see more about tax treaties here: <http://www.hio.harvard.edu/taxesandsocialsecurity/>

As a fellow, can I have access to Harvard LMSAI letterhead?

Yes. Requests for use of LMSAI letterhead will be reviewed by the SAI Administration. You should make this request in writing to the LMSAI Senior Program Manager.

As a fellow, can I have LMSAI business cards?

No, per LMSAI policy, we aren't able to supply business cards.
