Detailed Description
The mission of the Lak symposiums, workshop unleashing possibilities	shmi Mittal South Asia Institute, Harvard University (SAI), is to facilitate Interdisciplinary dialogues and knowledge exchange between the highest levels of academia and people of South Asia. This takes many forms including collaborative research, or and training programs. In keeping with SAIs mission and track record of managing and delivering interfaculty trainings, SAI is continuing a program designed to introduce accomplished, motivated students of South Asia to Harvard University and for academic growth of young adults for whom such opportunities may appear to be out of reach.
Many nations of Africa, postgraduate schoots.	the Middle East, and South Asia are underrepresented within the Harvard community. Students from these countries may often be the first in their family to achieve a college education and may face socioeconomic obstacles that discourage application to
The Crossroads Summ	er Program offers a multi-disciplinary learning opportunity to students selected for this program. A cohort of 60 students will be selected for the program in September 2018. The program will take place in Dubai.
A multi-disciplinary coll	ection of Harvard faculty will deliver a 4-day curriculum that would include some combination of case studies, small discussion groups, discussion on potential career paths, and information on applying to Harvard.
